The judge's decision is final and the winners will be notified by mid October 2019. The copyright of the works remains that of the writer, but the CLLCT and Lockerbie Writers' will publish the winning stories and a selection of other entries on the Castle Loch and Lockerbie Writers websites and Social Media pages. Works may also be used for future event promotion.

A few words of advice...

For those new to short story telling – don't leave entering the competition too close to the deadline and don't send in your first attempt. Put the story away for a little while after completion and when you review it, improvements will normally be seen immediately.

Before starting your story, you could take a walk around the loch (3-miles) or make multiple visits each time picking a new spot. One time try the castle area, on another visit walk along the sculpture trail, perhaps through the woods and over the grassland on another.

Don't just rush ahead looking at the big things like the views, loch and sky. Sometimes stop, take a seat on a log and look at things close-up. Are the leaves, plants, mosses all the same colour? What you thought was all the same shade of green or brown is actually made up of lots of different colours.

Some ideas for things to write about...

...life of a butterfly, the coming and going of birds, flowers in bloom, the castle ruins, how the castle once was, history, kings & queens, battles, how things might differ during the night from the daytime, fish, a fisherman trying to catch a big fish, sailing a boat, wood carvings, what lives under the board walk or in the loch waters or high above in the tree tops...

The only limit is your imagination.
